I've set up a 3 peaks challenge group on facebook to put out some feelers and see what the level of interest is. So far quite a few people have joined. If you're not in the know, it involves scaling the 3 mighty British peaks; Ben Nevis (1344m), Scafell Pike (978m) and Snowdon (1085m) in 24 hours. To make it a bit more interesting, if it goes ahead it'll probably take place the weekend before we start back after Christmas hols - 10/11 Jan. It'll be snowy on Big Ben Nevis and we'll be doing a fair bit of walking in the dark so some decent gear and a head torch will be essential. If you're interested get yourself joined up! If anyone has/knows someone who has a minibus licence and is prepared to come on an all expenses paid road trip can you please let me know. The planning of this event hinges on you!! This is an endurance race, so fitties only need apply. Estimating a cost of £60 per head to cover minibus, driver, 1 nights accommodation and some food. If your into it £10 sponsorship for charity should be fairly easy to come by and we can pass it on to the charities committee. Tim H (Sports sec trainee) x
